WELCOME TO BRITAIN

I am a frequent visitor to Britain and a frequent traveller by British Airways, which provides a fantastic service at highly competitive prices. But what a difference when I get off the plane!

First I have a long way for the taxi. It seems that British taxi drivers are not prepared to wait in line for passengers, even when those passengers are paying $30 a head to go to the city centre.

My first stop is the local supermarket. Another shock: the selection is limited, and when I go to the checkout, they give me a bag and tell me to pack my own groceries. Any supermarket in the USA offering the same level of service would quickly go out of business.

Britain is famous for top-quality men's clothes, and I myself am a regular customer. But when I go to my shirtmaker, I am told that delivery will be in 14 weeks. In China the same shirt can be done overnight.

Then a quick tour at Harrods, which is a marvellous shop with a world class selection of goods. But if you want to reclaim tax on exported goods, you not only have to pay extra for this, but you also have to go to another floor, get in the queue, and complete a number of forms.

I asked several British taxi drivers for their impressions of the USA. Those who have been there all respond that the service is excellent, even at the least expensive hotels and restaurants, and that "everyone seems happy to see us". So why not in Britain?
